

RGNUL Student Research Review

Copyright Policy

The RGNUL Student Research Review (RSRR) as an academic publication accepts submissions for publication under its seal and title, for the purposes of creating a critically comprehensive academic culture. In pursuance of the same, the RSRR hereby adopts the following policy concerning copyright.

Transfer of Copyright

The RSRR shall retain all copyrights arising out of any publications made by it. It shall further retain the rights to publish, reproduce, distribute, translate and edit the work submitted to it. It shall retain the rights to make the submission available in all forms and media.

Rights & Duties of the Author(s)

The author(s) shall be provided proper attribution and credit for the published work by the RSRR. The moral rights shall further vest with the author.

The author(s) shall declare that the submission(s) is their original work. The submission(s) must neither have been previously published nor be under consideration for publication on any other platform.

The author(s) shall not reuse the submission(s), in whole or in part, in their future work. However, the author(s) shall have the non-exclusive right to create derivative works from the submission(s).

The author(s) shall secure all necessary copyright permissions for the use of third-party materials in the submission(s) made by them. Further, the author(s) shall ensure that the submission(s) contains no matter that is defamatory or infringes any literary or proprietary rights, intellectual property rights, or any other rights of such nature.

Fair Use & Permission

Whereas all submissions to the RSRR are its exclusive copyright, they may be freely reproduced either in part or whole after obtaining due consent. All permissible uses under the fair use doctrine may be undertaken without such consent. In such cases the requisite attribution must be made, and the use must be for non-commercial purposes only. This requirement may be waived off by the RSRR if it deems fit.

Submissions may not be altered, distorted, built upon, or transformed in any manner without the explicit consent of the RSRR. The consent may be obtained by sending in a mail addressed to the editorial board at rslr@rgnul.ac.in. The work licensed to you may not be further licensed to a third party, without obtaining the RSRR's consent. In case of a breach of these conditions, the license to reproduce the submissions will be terminated by the RSRR, and any subsequent usage of the said material will not be permissible.

Copyright Contravention Notice

Should you become cognizant of any utilization of the RSRR's copyrighted materials that is in violation of or may potentially contravene the aforementioned provisions, you are requested to report the same to rslr@rgnul.ac.in.
